Figure 1 is a line graph illustrating the relationship between age and the percentage of total body weight of the head and neck region. The Y-axis represents the percentage of total body weight, ranging from 0 to 100 in increments of 20. The X-axis represents age in years, ranging from 0 to 100 in increments of 20. The curve shows a rapid increase in the percentage of body weight in the head and neck region during the first 10 years of life, followed by a more gradual increase that continues throughout adulthood, reaching approximately 65% by age 100.
